THAT BECAUSE I FAILED THE FIRST TIME
IS NO REASON WHY I CANT DO A THING.
I'D RATHER BEGIN WITH AN HONEST
FAILURE THAN AN UNDESERVED SUCCESS.
BOYS WE CAN DO THINGS AND WE SHOULD DO THINGS THE BEST WE CAN BECAUSE WE
CAN. THE BOY WHO DOESN'T DO HIS BEST
IS CHEATING. CHEATING HIS EMPLOYER,
AND CHEATING HIMSELF. HERES A FACT
AN HONEST, UNSELFISH ACT BENEFITS THE
ONE WHO PERFORMS THE ACT. A SELFISH &
DISHONEST ACT INJURES THE ONE WHO DOES
IT. IF YOU TELL A LIE YOU ARE FIXING A BANANA SKIN FOR YOURSELF TO STEP ON.
IN GOD'S LAW THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS HONEST EFFORT BEING UNAPPRECIATED.

COMMIT ORPHANS LEFT BY FATHER

Pathetic Fate of Youngster Moves Police as Case Is Disposed Of.

Fourteen-year-old Martin Fahey, and John, his eleven-year-old crippled brother, made each other a fearful looking in Broadway police station, South Boston yesterday. Martin goes back to the home of Mrs. John Fahey, 10 West Fifth street, where the boys have been living since their mother went away last Thanksgiving. Johnnie was taken to the House for Detention Catholics.

The two lads walked up to Captain Hall in Broadway station yesterday afternoon and Martin, as spokesman, said:

"My mother, Johnnie and I and Johnnie and I boarded with Mrs. Burke up to last night. She was a very nice woman. We don't know where he went. He used to let us stay with Mrs. Burke and Johnnie and girls, and she can't afford to keep them any longer. She said she would let us go, but that she would keep me, but that you must take me."

It was pretty odd, is the police station where the boys were taken, and the police, whose right side is partially paralyzed, told them to go to the prospect of having a brother. The policemen said they would leave his brother.

Captain Hall kept the lads over night, then sent Martin back to Mrs. Burke and Johnnie to their home.

Railroad King's Daughter Not Wed Goelet, It Is Declared.

New York, Feb. 20.—Authoritative disclosure was made today by the freight line that there is any ground for the report that the daughter of the late James H. Goetz is to marry Mr. Harrison Goelet. It is at present with her in Texas where he is taking a vacation trip. Mr. Goelet is also of the party, and from this circumstance it is seen that the report is without foundation. The report was published broadcast and Mr. Harrison has sent out a general denial on behalf of his daughter.

"The chief of D. C., said Mr. Felt is the nation's ruler of tomorrow care and crime, gun or sword to push in importance to the state. The people here at the case established to the stage and sort up in matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life. investigate the questions of infant mortality, juvenile courts, delinquency, dangerous accidents and diseases to which children are especially prone.

"During the seven years that you have occupied the presidential chair, you have been the living embodiment of this principle, and, while we are authorized to disagree to speak for the Catholic body, still it is quite possible to reflect in an informed way the gratitude of the 22,000,000 Catholics of America, who live under the flag for this honest, fearless, square dealing which you have meted out to us."

PERSONAL OF THE KING OF PEACE.

Famine of Statesmen Threatens Empire With Passing Away of Edward VII.

OLD WORLD ANTAGONISTIC.

His Friendship and Trust for which Does Much Toward Empire's Union.

(Special Correspondence of the Boston American.)

Dublin, Feb. 21.—The entire British Empire is beginning to realize as never before the tremendous importance of the personality of King Edward and the forces the overwhelming consequences to the national standard which will be with the passing of the monarch.

Fates as large as mountains hang upon the slender thread of King Edward's life. As he lives, the world is united; as he dies, the world is divided.

And the nations of the Old World are upon the verge of a new era of peace. It is the friendship and trust for which does much toward Empire's Union.

HERE ARE THE AMERICAN BEAUTIES! PICK SIX FAVORITES

...een selected for the Boston American's Chorus Beauty Contest for $1,000 stage contracts offered by Charles Frohman the Boston American, to pick six girls who will get positions in the chorus of one of Mr. Frohman's companies. You can do it with the voting coupons which the Boston American is printing every day. Today's coupon is counted as ten votes. There are twenty-four more pictures to be printed. They will appear in instalments in the paper each day this week. These fifty photographs were selected out of an assortment of more than 1,000 by a committee composed of Miss Hattie Williams, star of the "Fluffy Ruffles" company, at the Park Theatre; Charles J. Rich, resident manager of the Frohman, Rich & Harris theatrical interests, and a representative of the Boston American. Further details of the contest will be found on Page 1 of this section of the Boston Sunday American.

FOR THE $1,000 HARLES FROHMAN STAGE CONTRACT OFFER

The numbers on the pictures are solely for purposes of identification. They do not indicate any rating in the opinions of the committee. While it may appear unfair at first glance, there is really no undue advantage given to the girls whose pictures were in the first instalments printed. There will be plenty of time for the girls in the later instalments to catch up with the leaders before the contest is closed.

To-day's ballot coupon, which will be found on another page, will be counted as ten votes.

Many inquiries have been made at the American office if a voter wishing to cast more than one ballot should go to the trouble of signing each coupon. The answer is NO. One signed coupon sent in with fifty or a hundred blanks will count the whole lot.

It is offered as a suggestion to voters that they cast their ballots in this way, instead of sending in one or two or five at a time. Save the coupons until you have a block of fifty or one hundred.

As there are six girls to be chosen for the stage competitions, readers have the privilege of voting for more than one candidate, though if they prefer it they can concentrate all their votes upon one particular favorite.

Billie Burke Begins Her Engagement at Hollis—Novelties in Vaudeville.

MISS BILLIE BURKE comes to the Hollis Street Theatre to show a new act in the comedy, "Love May Wait." She will be here but one week.

Among the vaudeville novelties are Blanche Ring at Keith's and Joe Welch at the Orpheum. Miss Ring will sing her famous "Yip-Hay" song. Joe Welch, Hebrew impersonator, has been doing vaudeville for five years. This is his first appearance in Boston in that line.

"The Witching Hour" a telefilm drama, by Augustus Thomas begins its second week at the Majestic. John Mason holds the cast.

Other hold-overs include Cole and Johnson in "The Red Men" at the Globe, Mattie Williams in "Fluffy Ruffles" at the Park and "A Waltz Dream" at the Tremont.

Productions beginning this week in Boston to-morrow include "Little Nemo" at the Columbia, "The Three Kings" at the Globe, Mattie Williams in "Fluffy Ruffles" at the Park and "A Waltz Dream" at the Tremont.

SIGN POSTS TO SUCCESS THAT FOOL

By HERBERT KAUFMAN

(Copyright, 1909, by Herbert Kaufman)

If you hope to improve the world, first look to be reprov'd. Man is suspicious of his benefactors. Jenner was fought and cursed for fighting the small-pox curse. The universe does not drop its beliefs—they must be knocked down by proof. The mere possession of knowledge is nothing—it is totally useless until it is used.

You can't plant a new crop in an old field until you clear away the stubble. The birth of an idea usually means the death of an ideal.

Columbus was sure that the world was a giant apple and not a geological pancake, but he had to produce a western hemisphere before the fifteenth century believed in an eastern one.

Your father had a chance to buy a share of the original telephone stock, but because he was an average man and therefore narrow and suspicious of all that he did not understand, he congratulated himself for his common sense and invested the money in cigars.

Your ancestors broiled a few thousand gentlemen for insulting their vanity—for the terrible crime of thinking differently.

Those who yearn to wear the laurel wreath must learn to bear the fool's cap. The difference between a jackass and a genius isn't so much a matter of ears as of years.

Great ambitions must be backed by great control, great denial and great determination. They who understand most are understood least.

Just one man in a hundred can see beyond his nose—the short-sighted people are in the majority—and the majority rules. Only imagination can visualize what is to be—most people have no imagination, therefore they doubt and ridicule what they do not comprehend. To them the oak is never apparent in the acorn.

"That fool" rang in the ears of every crusader of progress. Illustrious men divide their careers into three chapters:

CHAPTER ONE.

The time when they jeered me.

CHAPTER TWO.

The time when they cheered me.

CHAPTER THREE.

The time when they feared me.

Fortune disdains mere ability—brain is nothing without bravery. The man who can be thrashed by a sneer has retreated before he was defeated. Half the new town-halls are gifts from "blamed fools" who left home because they couldn't get a sixty-horse-power opportunity in a one-horse village.

Marshall Field was dismissed for incompetency by a brilliant cross-roads merchant prince.

Success is only for those who are willing to stand by their standards—who are ready to endure the siege of misjudgment—who are prepared to face the fire of criticism and to accept defeat until they become vaccinated against it.—Most men who gave up would have arrived if they had kept up.

Nothing can be accomplished by a coward—everything is possible to the courageous. The realm of "You Can't" is dwindling every year—its coast-line is being eaten away by each successive surge of advancement. The greatest works of humanity are still incubating in the womb of time. They will be achieved by the "fools" who won't lie down until they've downed some lie.

Steel Trust Cut Sham Fight.

By Boersianer.

The battle started by the cut in steel was earnest, were it not a prearranged affair, there would be no logic in the depreciation of railroad shares, since cheap prices would mean more business for the carriers and less expenditures for the extensions and improvements contemplated.

Washington's Inspiration

EVERY American to-morrow will celebrate the birthday of George Washington. That is a birthday that will never be forgotten while liberty, or even the hope of liberty, shall exist in this country.

Among the great men of this nation and of the world Washington stands out as the representative of courage, FIXED PURPOSE, that no defeat or disappointment could destroy.

Washington stands as the quiet, brave man among the world's great heroes.

Thanks to the public schools, there are few men, women or children in this country that lack a fairly comprehensive idea of Washington. We see in him the big, mental and physically powerful upholder of liberty and of justifiable revolution.

We are encouraged in every one of our struggles of government by the memory that Washington was, above everything else, A REBEL. He was no man bowing the neck meekly before injustice, prostituting the name of law. He looked at acts, at conditions of life, at the will of the people. You couldn't blind him with talk of law, or established rights, or tradition, or precedent.

He had been a soldier under the command of England. But that didn't keep him from leading the rebellion against England when he knew that she was wrong and that America was right.

He was a rich man, and died one of the richest men in this country. That didn't prevent his sympathizing with those that were not rich. It didn't prevent his siding against the horde of cowardly rich that cluttered up New York's island and that protested against everything done in the name of liberty, or ran away to Europe.

Washington was the great, strong rebel against injustice. He was slow to make up his mind; his name doesn't figure among the fiery orators that asked for liberty or death. But when everything was done, the name of George Washington stood out as that of a man who had carried the load, fought the fights, endured disappointment, ingratitude, the cowardice of enlisted troops, and all the other burdens of a man who tries to work for the people.

The whole world recognizes the grandeur of Washington's character. The people of America should celebrate his birthday, not merely with praise of him or study of his character. The best way to celebrate the birthday of Washington is TO MAKE OURSELVES BETTER AMERICANS, MORE WORTHY OF THIS COUNTRY THAT HE TOOK FROM ENGLAND, MORE DETERMINED TO RESIST TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION, AS HE RESISTED IT, WHETHER THAT TAXATION BE PUT ON OUR BACKS BY THE ENGLISH IN 1776 OR BY THE MONEY KING OF 1909.

We can't be worthy of Washington by admiring Washington, or thinking about him, or praising him. To deserve such a man as that, men of the nation SHOULD TRY TO BE LIKE HIM.

We can't all be physical giants, as he was. We can't create artificially within ourselves the wonderful, patient, plodding courage, the unbelievable persistence that that man showed in his long, uphill fight.

But every man, the weakest even, can if he will imitate Washington in one respect. THE LEAST OF US CAN TAKE FOR GUIDING STAR ONE IDEA, ONE INSPIRING PURPOSE OR BELIEF, AND STICK TO THAT.

This picture ingeniously presents the flag of this country in the form of a blazing torch, lighting up Washington's hour of disappointment and sorrow.

You know that Washington wasn't a man of victories, but a man of many defeats. He had raw and unreliable troops. And these troops didn't by any means consist exclusively of heroes. He was forever retreating, forever enduring disappointment, and the most frequent disappointment was the sight of the coat tails of vanishing soldiers that had enough of fighting, and left Washington to fight it out alone.

HE DID FIGHT IT OUT. Always before him there were the light and the hope of a free nation. He was determined to make this country free.

He was determined to beat the English and to drive them out. He was determined that the people of America should rule in America, and should not submit to a foreign king or a foreign people, or a foreign parliament.

He never dropped that thought for one moment, and therefore they could not beat him. He did last, he did fight, he did drive out the English, AND HE MADE THIS PEOPLE FREE, FREE TO RULE THEMSELVES WITHIN THEIR OWN BORDERS.

That is the George Washington that Americans of to-day should think about, the man determined that the people should rule themselves.

We need a George Washington now.

We need great leaders, plain citizens imbued with the one idea of liberty, REAL LIBERTY, REAL FREEDOM, not the second-rate, sham freedom that casts an unthinking ballot and accepts dictation and taxation from the cunning money rulers by whom the ballot was written and the candidates nominated.

We haven't any intention of basing upon Washington's Birthday any special political sermon. We don't wish to imitate the well-meaning person who got up at the funeral and said that if nobody objected he would like to say a few words about the Single Tax.

We are not going to use a birthday or a funeral for any special theorizing.

We DO say to the men who read this paper that they and this country need PERSISTENT PRINCIPLE. They need some of that courage that isn't beaten down by one defeat, or ten, or twenty.

America needs men to whom the idea is the thing, and victory or defeat a secondary matter.

This one inspiring idea we need, not only in our political life, which has degenerated into a mere imitation of freedom and democratic government, but in our individual lives as well.

Half of the men and women in the world, and more than half, are like boats drifting on the water without a rudder, or a compass, or a chart, or a destination. With the pangs of birth they are launched upon the sea of life, and they drift. One current drives them this way, another that way, and then a breeze of public opinion or neighborhood gossip springs up and drives them somewhere else. They drift here and there and back again, and at the end they drift into the local graveyard, having gone nowhere and done nothing.

IT IS ALL FOR LACK OF A PURPOSE, AN INSPIRATION.

What is there that you can do? What is there that you WANT to do? What work within your power is worthy of an earnest human being? Make up your mind about that, AND THEN STICK TO IT, AS WASHINGTON STUCK TO HIS IDEA OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

Pick out some one thing, plan out for yourselves some one direction. Start in the right way and steer straight, and KEEP AT IT. There's very little competition in this world. And of REAL DETERMINATION there's less than of any other quality.

Washington won because he was a determined man. There were no Washingtons competing with him, and yet absolute determination might have made a Washington out of any one of a dozen of those that he tired out and defeated in the end.

We can't have marvellous genius and intelligence. Those things are born in a man. BUT WASHINGTON DID NOT HAVE THEM. He hadn't the eloquence of Patrick Henry. He hadn't the political genius of Jefferson, or the wit or intellect of Franklin. Around him there were men that could eclipse him in everything EXCEPT DOGGED DETERMINATION. There they couldn't beat him. And that quality in George Washington beat England and freed this country.

Don't you suppose that the quality that drove the English out of America and established this nation COULD SETTLE YOUR LITTLE PROBLEMS FOR YOU? Try it and see.

Look at this picture of Washington—a crude enough picture in our quick-printing process, but a splendidly ideal picture.

Get into your life an idea that shall light up the blackest moment, let yourself be guided by an inspiring thought and purpose. It will make defeat often-repeated more glorious than some cheap victory.

Think over Washington to-day, and on his birthday to-morrow, and see if you can't get out of his life a part of that one quality which made it great, and put it into your own life.

DETERMINATION WILL MAKE ANY MAN SUCCEED.

When Winnie Wynne went walking once, where walks were washed and wet,
The janitor's attention she tried very hard to get.
But he was wrapped in thoughtful gloom, as if affairs of state
Were weighing on his noble brow, and bowed him with their weight!

"Ahem!" said Winnie, "may I pass?" The janitor awoke.
"Aw!" he exclaimed, in deep chagrin, "ain't I the bloomin' bloke!
Ex-cuse me, ma'am!" He swished the hose around so fast—alack!
It hit a big policeman on his broad, blue, burly back!

Now, no policeman is a saint! That copper wheeled about—
When, whack! a stream shot in his face and nearly knocked him out!
The janitor was so absorbed in watching Winnie
Wynne
He hadn't any notion of the plight the cop was in.

With muttered growls of fury that policeman made a jump,
And on the luckless janitor his club came down
ker-thump!
Somehow the hose got twisted—it shot straight up in air—
And floods of water tumbled down upon the angry pair!

Well, Winnie simply had to smile at those two dripping men!
The big policeman glanced at her—and then he glanced again!
"He meant no harm," said Winnie; "let him go."
(she smiled). "Why, mum,
He did jest right to soak me! This feller here's my chum!"

Her mission thus accomplished, winsome Winnie tripped away;
She flashed them back another smile as she called out, "Good-day!"
"Who is she, Bill? Gee, ain't she great!" "Well,
I dunno her name—
But that 'ere smile she touches off jest sets my heart afame!"

THE BEST THING IN LIFE

Wealthiest Debutante of the Season.

THE richest American heiress and debutante of 1909 is Miss Mary Duke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin N. Duke of New York.

Mr. Duke is one of the chiefs of the American Tobacco Company, which ranks next, if not equal to, the Standard Oil Company as a trust and is now engaging the attention of the Government prosecutors.

He is the treasurer of the company and the older brother of James B. Duke, who is the president. There is one other brother, Brodie L. Duke, who has had some personal misfortunes and who does not now take an active part in the business. Consequently the bulk of the colossal fortune belongs to James B. and Benjamin N. Duke.

When the Tobacco Trust was organized the Dukes owned 30 per cent of the stock. Since then the trust has grown until it controls practically the whole tobacco trade of America, both wholesale and retail and also of a considerable part of Europe. It would be a modest estimate to place the fortune of Benjamin N. Duke at $150,000,000.

It will be consoling to some people to reflect that every time they light a cigarette, every time they puff a pipe, every time they chew, every time they take a pinch of snuff they add something to the propective wealth of Miss Mary Duke. The British smoker, as a rule, may enjoy the same pleasing thought.

Miss Duke has one brother, Angier Duke, and in the ordinary course of events they will inherit their father's colossal fortune. They have even greater prospects than that. As their uncle, James B. Duke, has no children it is presumed that they will also receive a large part of his fortune, although nothing is known positively on that point. It is certain that no debutante of the present year and none now appearing on the social horizon, is so great an heiress as Miss Duke.

Many persons would expect that the famous beauty Miss Marjorie Gould, would inherit a larger fortune but it must be remembered that her father's property will be divided among five children.

The Dukes live all over the world. Then have a great house in New York, a house in Durham, N. C., where the family came from, a house in London, an apartment in Paris, a place in Florida and other residences. They have a steam yacht and twenty automobiles to help them in traveling from place to place.

Miss Duke was presented this year to King Edward at his court in London. She excited great ad-

Thus it has had the most pronounced effect on itself while the other set has been left unchanged. But now the situation has changed, and the women have become educated, they have the chance to develop themselves as people before and to organize with a group which manifests itself through literature and painting, and their conduct is more correct, having seen the error of violence, and, therefore, a falling away from the old. The same thing can be seen in the animal world; when two species are in a struggle for existence that which gets the upper hand is the one developing away from the other, but if circumstances change, and the species which was the weaker becomes the stronger, it is an opportunity for development, and it is apt to be even more rapid in that of a great being. It may take millions of a considerable extent of time that the latter has made.

MY SECRETS OF BEAUTY

No. 8. SPOTS ON THE SUN OF BEAUTY.

DAY

BY MME. LINA CAVALIERI,
THE MOST FAMOUS LIVING BEAUTY.

"Ten Things I Beg Women Never to Eat."

MME. LINA CAVALIERI, the famous beauty and the well-known grand opera singer, who has made a life-long study of beauty culture, and has, indeed, herself worked out many recipes whose secrets are her own, is now writing for this newspaper a series of extremely interesting and valuable articles on the Secrets of Beauty. Her article for next Sunday will be on The Beautiful Neck, with recipes, advice and suggestions which every woman will be glad to know.

"Most women have an inordinate liking for candy."

WOMEN come now to spots on the sun of beauty. So at least the poet prettily described them. Physicians, who from choice or necessity use long words, classify them as eruptions of the skin. They are sad blemishes upon the face of beauty.

Primarily their cause is indigestion. To remove an effect, one should always try first to remove the cause. Most women have some form of indigestion, and it is due to one or both of two bad habits. One is eating heartily. The other is not drinking enough water. For instance, most women have an inordinate liking for candy. Candy is an unmitigated evil. I never eat it. I would as lief pick up a red-hot poker with my fingers as eat a box of candy. The red-hot poker would burn my hands, but the candy would mar the beauty of what is still more important—my face.

So with pastries and puddings and gravies. All are foes of a good complexion, because they are foes of digestion.

Here are ten things I beg women never to eat:

- Sausages.
- Dried Fish.
- Pies.
- Bonbons.
- Puddings.
- Ice cream.
- Candy, except when well reasoned.
- Port, especially ham.
- Oysters, unless one is absolutely certain of their freshness.
- Hot bread, as usually made in America.

It is obvious, of course, to intelligent women who object to most of them.

I just a critical value say: "Ice cream: Why, that is prescribed as a diet for invalids." I know it is, and I know, too, that the science of medicine is further behind in its dietary than in any other feature. Personally I think that ice cream arrests digestion. It checks the flow of the gastric juices that wash from the stomach and interfere with their work of digesting the mass of the last meal. I have read that your clever American May Irwin, who is a domestic as well as a stage artist, advises eating ice cream at the beginning of the meal. If you must have ice cream, eat it at the beginning of the meal, before the soup. That is wise. It will interfere less with the work of digestion than it would at the end of the meal.

Three hours are required to digest the average meal. The introduction of ice cream, chilling the delicate lining of the stomach, retards and sometimes wholly prevents the work of digestion.

Again I must destroy a popular delusion in the form of an accepted custom. I am opposed to drinking hot water. Instead of being an aid to digestion, it is a hindrance. It is granted after a heavy dinner, when the sense of overfullness oppresses us, a cup of hot water, slowly sipped, aids digestion. But this should be used only in emergencies. The regular habit of drinking a great deal of hot water is harmful, for when the stomach is flooded with it the gastric juices go on strike. Finding the intruders there they refuse to do their work and retire. And the hot water is left to do the work, ineffectively and alone. So the hot-water habit seems to me a distinctly bad one.

Light foods, as chicken, fresh fish, beans, spinach and beets, containing iron, and stewed fruit, slowly eaten and well masticated, are excellent for the complexion. Three quarts of water a day should be drunk to keep one well, which state a good complexion always follows. I bear, for I have imagination, a girl exclaims: "Three quarts? I cannot." "Oh, yes you can."

I have a friend who paid a physician a thousand dollars for treating him for chronic indigestion, until he discovered that what was curing him was the copious water drinking. And my friend said the lesson was well worth the thousand dollars. The three quarts can be comfortably absorbed thus:

Drink three tumblerfuls on rising, and while you are about your morning toilet. Do not eat it. If you are not thirsty, drink it anyway. Your morning bath for it. At each meal it is possible to drink one glass of water slowly, sipping it. I know there are objections who warn us not to drink at meals, but there are quite as many who say that one glassful is not injurious. In indeed helpful if it be discreetly drunk. Many women intend to drink glasses of water, but forget. To remind yourself, put a glass on the table, or a pitcher of water stands beside you in the room where you are studying, or chatting, or reading visitors. Seeing the pitcher you are reminded of your stint to drink at least three glasses between meals. If four, all the better. The last two or three glasses can be drunk before retiring.

For the work of cleansing the stomach I should advise a half teaspoonful of soda taken, if a wine glass of water every morning. If the disorder is very pronounced I should repeat the dose after each meal for three or four days.

Bicarbonate of soda, like other good things, may become a bad thing if used too freely. I am grateful to the Paris pharmacists who gave me this warning:

"Diluted charcoal is a violent corrective of the stomach which is tired or rebellious. One teaspoonful every morning and one after each meal is as good as a broom in the stomach."

Large, red spots appear upon the face sometimes, according to "try to burn their way out." This literally they are trying to do. An excess of uric acid causes this condition, and it is best to consult a physician about a cure for it is the parent of rheumatism. If a consultation is not convenient, then diet, diet!

Let me more fruit in the morning. Let it only at noon and night. Let the breakfast be most simple, of some coarse cereal, or crusts of oat bread, and avoid rare meats, especially beef.

But a beauty complains that there are spots on her face and yet she must show at a ball to-morrow. There is no time for diet, for consulting a physician, for any of the thorough remedies by which one arrives at the goal of a good complexion. What she does must be quick and simple.

Very well, then, a pimple near the corner of her lovely chin. What shall be done? Be quick, beauty, while I tell you what is this yellowish substance that is to remove the spot, and that quickly!

Later, for you must know what it is. Acetone is a colorless, volatile liquid. It is water to alcohol, fat and resin. It is effective for anthrax. Under the form of a fifty per cent solution, with two per cent of iodine of potassium, it has been much used in hay fever and similar irritable conditions of the respiratory tract. And this is what will most interest you:

But a beauty complains that there are spots on her face and yet she must show at a ball to-morrow. There is no time for diet, for consulting a physician, for any of the thorough remedies by which one arrives at the goal of a good complexion. What she does must be quick and simple.

"Then, with a silk sponge or a bit of absorbent cotton saturated with alcohol press the spot to disinfect it and neutralize the acetone."

Another of the hasty remedies which I would recommend is:

White zinc 1 ounce
Pure cold cream 1 ounce
Mix these thoroughly together and apply with a bit of cotton cloth to the pimple. Acne or blackheads may be as disfiguring as a pimple. For this I should use ammonia peroxide of hydrogen. Dip the end of a match or a wood toothpick into either and touch the spot. The ammonia or peroxide will not remove the blackhead. I do not think it is well to do that. If you press it out you will leave a hole in the face, an enlarged pore, which is quite as disfiguring. The ammonia or peroxide simply cleanses it, removing the dirt which gave it its homely name, blackhead. Or, if there be much acne, I have used an entire face bath of a four per cent solution of borax, wiping it off soon after and giving it a second bath of rose water to soften the skin.

An ointment prescribed by a great French physician, whose specialty was treatment of the skin, is made up of the following ingredients:

- Ergotine 3 grams
- Oxide of zinc 7 grams
- Vaseline 30 grams
- Another that is quickly efficacious is: Precipitate of sulphur 1 dram
- Tincture of camphor 1 dram
- Glycerine 1 dram
- Rosewater 4 ounces

A third, that is more agreeable in its action than the last, consists of:

- Bicarbonate of soda 36 grams
- Distilled water 8 ounces
- Essence of rose 6 drops

I have seen pimples removed by a half dozen applications of bicarbonate of soda, dampened slightly, and placed with the tip of the finger upon the irritated surface.

Another simple remedy for spots or pimples is based upon the cheap and convenient toilet article, bicarbonate of soda.

- Bicarbonate of soda 36 grams
- Glycerine 1 dram
- Spermocet ointment 1 ounce

This should be applied with abundance, allowed to remain on the affected part for a quarter of an hour, and removed.

For the bleached condition of the skin, which is caused by sun in summer and wind in winter, if the skin be delicate, I recommend this:

- Borax 1/2 dram
- Glycerine 1 ounce
- Elder flower water 7 ounces

If the nose be reddened by irritation of sun or wind, or if nose-pores have caused it to be congested, apply hot compresses. They should be for redness.

Starch is often recommended for cleansing the face. I do not use it because I think the tendency is to make the skin too delicate, to detach it from the muscles and to cause premature wrinkles.

I am often asked how to remove moles. I answer, "Do not remove them. In the time of Marie Antoinette they were regarded as marks of beauty. Let them alone." But if any one insists, I say let us go to a physician and be by him guided. Probably he will remove them by electricity, but I am afraid.

direction of refinement. And a dainty powder stuffed upon the face before going out, especially if cold cream has first been applied, is an excellent protection from the cold or heat or from a high wind. But it is absolutely necessary that the powder be pure. Talc powder is harmless to the skin. It protects the complexion as would a fine veil, and it removes the disagreeable "whiteness" upon the skin that makes the best-groomed woman look vulgar at night!

This preparation I have found most valuable:

- Rice flour 6 ounces
- Rice starch 8 ounces
- Carbonate of magnesia 3 ounces
- Soric acid 1/2 ounce
- Powdered iris root 1/2 dram
- Essence of bergamot 10 drops
- Essence of citron 15 drops

Several inquiries having been made as to lemon, a hair-dye which I have recommended as harmless, I take this occasion to answer the queries.

It gives the hair a darker hue and shines at with red. It is prepared by pouring a pint of boiling water upon an ounce of the leaves. After the preparation is cool apply it freely with a brush.

By DR. ROBERT BELL,
a Celebrated Cancer Specialist.

THE time has arrived, I think, when the advantage of therapeutics over the knife in the treatment of cancer should be more widely recognized, not only by the medical profession but by the public. What possible benefit can ever be obtained by cutting out what is, in reality, only a concrete symptom of a blood disease.

The part operated upon is weakened so seriously that it is to a most prejudicial extent deprived of its vitality, and therefore of its recuperative power. By this method the causes which have led up to the condition are entirely ignored and are permitted to continue to exercise their pernicious influence, with the result that the disease, sooner or later, reasserts itself in the weakened tissue, and assumes a more virulent form than before.

After thirteen years' careful observation and close study of the natural history of the disease, I am convinced that the failure are to be attributed to the fact that attention has been mainly directed to the outcrop of the disease instead of to the whole of the animal, and to the conditions of its development. There is little benefit to be derived from experiments upon animals, because cancer in those creatures, although due to a similar cause, differs materially in its essential points from that which attacks man. The only remedy that has been suggested so much attention, for instance, disappears spontaneously in about 30 per cent of the creatures attacked, and would probably do so in a much larger proportion were their environment improved and their diet brought more in harmony with their natural requirements.

Would a practical gardener be content simply to cut down fungoid growths in a portion of his domain into which neither light nor air had free access? Would he not rather, if he desired to eradicate the noxious growths, take means to admit the essential elements of healthy plant life—namely, an abundance of sunlight and fresh air, and at the same time adopt measures to sweeten the soil?

The Beautiful Widow of the Poet, Catulle Mendes

MADAME C. TULLE MENDES is the central figure in an extraordinary tragedy of Puritan life. Her husband, C. tulle Mendes, one of the most brilliant men of letters in France, recently returned from

It is said that Mr. had no attraction for him since the beautiful wife aspired from Mrs. Madame Mendev was Judith Tactier, daughter of theophile tactier who was beyond question one of the two or three greatest French authors of the nineteenth century. Everybody hailed the marriage between the rising author and the great author's daughter as a ideal union, but Madame Mendev proved to have too much Henry talent and so that parted.

It is significant that Madame Mendev is now a bore. If the feminine movement is just fourteen years that cancer is not the hopeless disease it is supposed to be. Now, I am receiving encouraging reports from medical men in all parts of the world.

I have had requests from doctors in nearly every country in Europe, in Australia, in America and in South Africa to give them cancer, and I have done my best to comply with every application. My invariable rule is to hand patients over to their own medical advisers, with full instructions as to how to apply the treatment, the efficacy of which is testified to by the doctors in letters to me, some of the patients who are now restored to health were discharged from hospitals

Various so-called specifics for cancer have come into prominence, but they have survived long enough only to prove their utter uselessness. The very nature of the disease makes any specific useless. A Brussels doctor, I observe, claims that the subcutaneous injection into the tumor of formalin is a cure for cancer. This is one of the remedies which I advocated and employed as an adjunct to either the peptic or the x-ray, as far back as 1905, and, indeed, in 1911, I saw a Dr. A. Belgian Medical man of the same name write to me from Montreal and asked me to give him a quantity of my treatment which I did.

To its friends—in number they are legion—epitomizes progress and achievement. In the short story field we have such popular authors as Herbort Quick, Ellis Parker Butler, Eliza Calvert Hall and a host of others—master-workmen, whose works are eagerly sought by every editor in America. Our special articles are written by such men as William H. Taft, Henry Watterson, Daniel J. Sully, Charles Edward Russell and others of equal calibre. In art, in poetry, in fact, in every department, the same standard of excellence is maintained.

Absolutely at our risk, we will send you FREE for three months. With its exceptionally attractive program, CHRONOPOLIS can well afford to adopt this means of introducing itself. We want you to enroll you among the many friends of CHRONOPOLIS. Merely send us your name and you will receive, absolutely without expense or trouble to yourself, a three-months' introductory trial subscription to CHRONOPOLIS. No matter how many magazines you take, CHRONOPOLIS is the one you will want to keep. We can afford to do without its subscribers last year are subscribers this year, with their friends. This, after all, is the real test of a magazine's merit.

Chauncey M. Depew's irresistible anecdotes have kept the world laughing, now, for nearly half a century. COSMOPOLITAN is the one magazine that has finally succeeded in securing this bony brilliant statesman-financier to write his charming reminiscences for you.

Charles Edward Russell—journalist—inimitable prose-poet—master of sharp, incisive English—the man who makes you sit up with a start when you read him. It's this spirit you will find in "The Story of Charlemagne"—that fairly whirls one through the brilliant life-story of one of the greatest, grandest characters that have emerged from the Middle Ages.

Eliza Calvert Hall—whose wonderfully clever "Aunt Jane" stories have called forth such emphatic praise from President Roosevelt. Charming—simple—sincere—are the words that characterize the brilliant little stories of this past-master of the art of delightful tale-telling.

Ellis Parker Butler's grotesque little masterpiece, "Pigs Is Pigs," has set the story standard for COR-NUPOLITAN. Read CORNUPOLITAN the coming year for his deliciously flavored humor. A whole series of these remarkable tales will appear in forthcoming numbers.

George Randolph Chester—inimitable prince of short-story tellers. COSMOPOLITAN during 1909 will contain his brilliantly interesting stories—fascinating tales of love, romance and stirring adventure.

All this and much more you will get in the COSMOPOLITAN for 1909--the magazine that brings the throbbing, breathing world of fact, art, fiction and drama right to your door every month.

We will send you this attractive magazine for three months, absolutely without further
